

Working Student / Intern AI Content Production (w/m/d)

starting in February 2024, 16-20h per week / full-time

What are we doing?

We are a tech company based in Munich, dedicated to revolutionizing the way people experience and connect with their surroundings. Our mission is to bring cultural audio content to car drivers, tailored specifically to their interests and live location. Thus, we are making every car trip an immersive and enlightening audio experience. We are building on newly emerging automotive app stores leveraging the power of artificial intelligence. In the beginning of next year, we are extensively expanding our content portfolio to cover all of Germany with exciting audio stories.

How can you help?

As we deeply validated what car drivers expect from our content, we are now ready to tailor content to our customers' needs. Therefore, we need help from highly motivated working students/interns to train our artificial intelligence while producing audio content about different sights, cities, regions, and natural peculiarities. While you will learn much about Germany and its neighboring countries, you will apply cutting-edge technologies to produce high-quality audio content. You will curate which POIs (points of interests) we should cover on which routes, generate short texts, and produce audios with Text-to-Speech-Tools – all with our users' preferences in mind. You will work closely with the founders and our tech team to further optimize this content production process.

What do we offer?

The best thing for working in a startup is responsibility, flexibility, and learning. As we are a small team with a flat hierarchy, you will gain insights into adjacent areas from content production to user validation and product development. We offer you the possibility to flexibly see different parts of our business and influence how the content roadmap should look like. Lastly, you will be experiencing a startup team currently working with a major German car manufacturer.

What should you bring?

We are rather flexible about what you are currently studying or whether you are between different studies and want to discover something new. For us, interesting backgrounds are journalism, media, communication, culture, podcasting or similar.

Here are some key skills that we are looking for:

- Interest in our product and motivation to join an early-stage startup.
- German as a native language or extremely confident, as the content is initially created in German.
- Flexibility in working hours.
- Strong communication skills in speaking and writing.
- Openness to apply new technologies.

We are really looking forward to meeting you!

Please attach your CV to a motivational mail to career@locco.app.